[illegible] INDUSTRIALIZED [illegible]

[illegible] in Spanish to [illegible] GMT 13 Mar 86 [illegible]

[Text] Fidel Castro reaffirmed the need for the underdeveloped countries to maintain a united front in all forums before the industrialized capitalist powers and to insist that they [illegible] and [illegible] to these [illegible].

[illegible], president of the [illegible] Committee, [illegible] of the Group of 77 [illegible] of the United Nations. The group is in reality made up of [illegible] developing countries.

He recalled that the [illegible] Summit Conference of the Nonaligned Movement in Havana severely condemned the difficult situation of the developing countries which [illegible] for their peoples. He said that now, when the world economy has fallen into the worst [illegible] crisis, the underdeveloped countries [illegible], with respect to the [illegible], must [illegible] the industrialized capitalist nations that [illegible] with justice and equity is the only way to economic development and peace.

[illegible] recalled that the nonaligned movement's president Fidel Castro proposed to the UN General Assembly that [illegible] less than $300 billion additional fund be [illegible] to aid the underdeveloped countries in this decade. He added that this proposal, [illegible] by the Group of 77, has already been accepted as a valid alternative to important Western [illegible].

[illegible] TIES WITH [illegible]

[illegible] Havana International Service in Spanish [illegible] GMT 13 Mar 86

[Commentary]

[Text] Fraternal cooperation between the Cuban and Soviet Communist Parties is undoubtedly the most solid foundation of the unbreakable friendship between Cuba and the USSR. Both Marxist-Leninist organizations have devoted all their efforts to [illegible] the workers' happiness, [illegible], to build the socialist community and to strengthen the international [illegible].

In the present international situation in which U.S. imperialism and its allies are carrying out actions which are leading to a return to the cold war, both parties are struggling to improve their ties and [illegible] unity of the international communist and labor movement. Their policy is to reject every attempt to make the organizations which form the world's revolutionary vanguard clash with one another. The two parties [illegible] the attempts to divide the forces struggling for social progress, for the national liberation of the peoples and for permanent peace.

In reality, these ties represent the relations between the parties and [illegible] peoples. These relations are based on the [illegible] that existed long before the Cuban revolutionary organizations that fought against the Batista regime got together in a single party which in October 1965 became the Communist Party.

In 1960 the U.S. Government began its economic aggression against Cuba, one of the most powerful weapons it had to attempt to subdue a small and poor country which had decided to carry out a revolution. The oil supply to our country was suspended and the U.S. sugar quota was canceled. Nevertheless, each of these aggressive acts was met with the solidarity of the Soviet people.
